

St Justus visit

Dear Blog,

Last week I walked to St Justus church. It was very different to St John Fisher. Instead of keeping the bread and wine in a tabernacle they leave it out and they use it all up unlike St John Fisher church! In St Justus church they didn't wear robes, that is very different. Also they have modern art which not many churches have. It was also the third generation of that church.

They don't have normal old books they have a projector and screen where they display the words to hymns and responses. They also have a baptismal pool where they can baptise adults and usually a vicar called Helen Burns performs it. They don't have stained glass windows like St John Fisher they have normal windows so they can see what's going on outside.

After the service they get people to come into their hall to get them to have a cup of tea and a couple of biscuits and to catch up. I think I prefer St Justus church. That is my blog. Write soon.
